11 years of transformation in rural communities across the country

Vision, insight, and tenacity - that's the Tribal Health approach to rural health.

For 11 years, we've specialized in serving rural and Native American communities. Across every part of the country, we've connected VA and IHS clinics, FQHCs, rural hospitals, and 638 facilities to top-tier healthcare services.

We are experienced in the unique logistics, cultural nuances, and staffing hurdles that come with rural health - and we know how to solve those challenges.

Our vision is big but our approach is humble.

Tailored transformation

We sit down with your leadership to understand the specific hurdles of your region - and we tailor our services to your goals.

Deep rural competency

With deep roots in building healthcare programs in rural communities and Native reservations, we understand both the complexities of the Rural Health Transformation Program and the solutions needed to turn funding into sustainable patient outcomes.

Holistic, versatile clinical expertise

Our provider network and consultants cover every clinical specialty and acuity level. From practice management to staffing to telehealth to mobile clinics, we serve patients across the continuum of care - no matter where they're located.

Rural partnerships

Local insights, clinical expertise

We bring advanced frameworks and systemic improvements to each facility - improving operational efficiencies, solving staffing shortfalls, and designing new clinical programs that deliver high ROI for our clients.

While we can't solve rural health disparities overnight, our partnerships with state and community leaders unlock immediate improvements while building long-term resilience.

Native health Culture-centric care

Trust isn't given – it's earned. Native health disparities are directly impacted by historical trauma, chronic underfunding, damaging governmental policy, and generational poverty.

Our teams pair clinical excellence with community values, ensuring a comfortable and respectful patient experience throughout their medical journey.

Our goal: to drive transformation on patient, community, and generational levels.

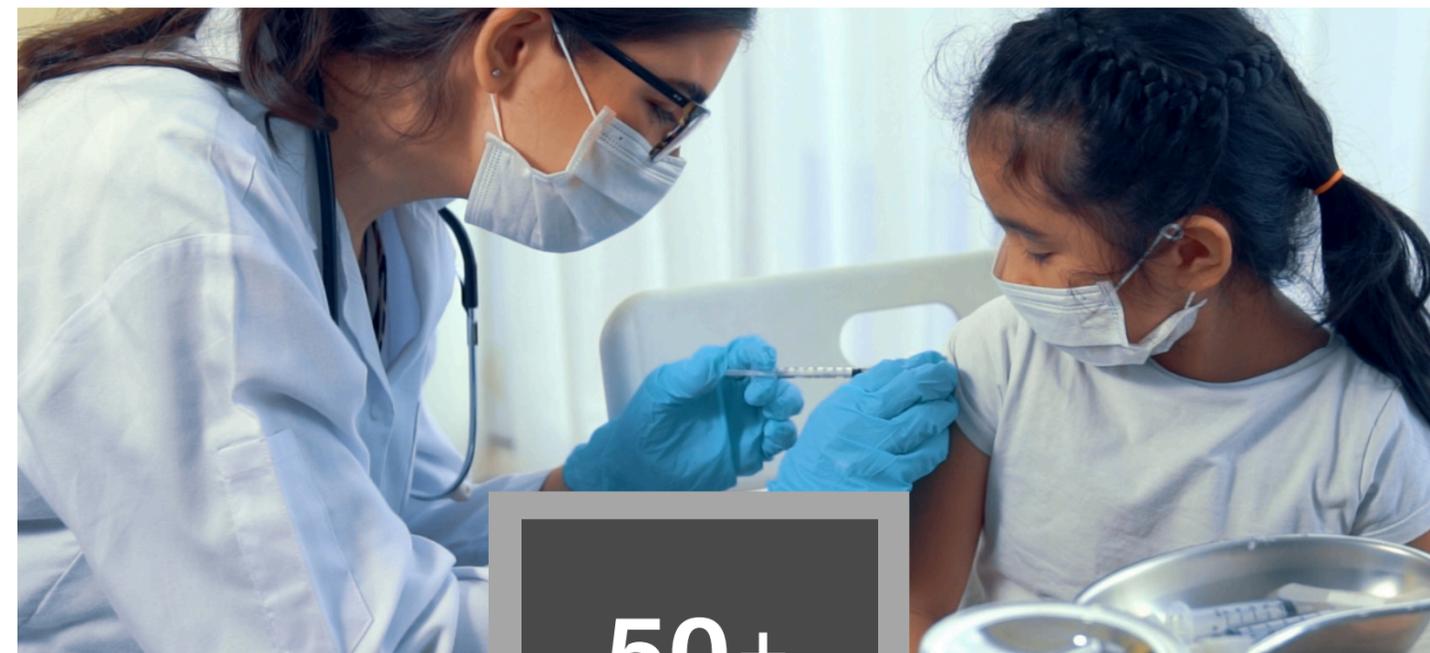

Provider network

All specialties

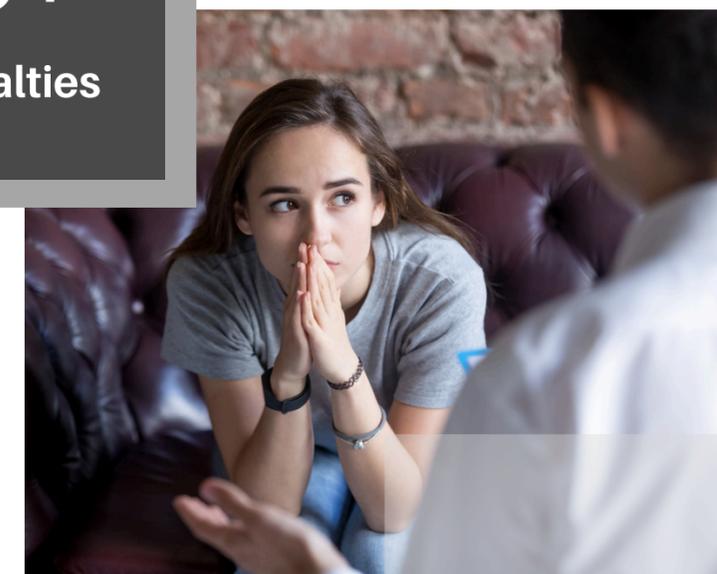

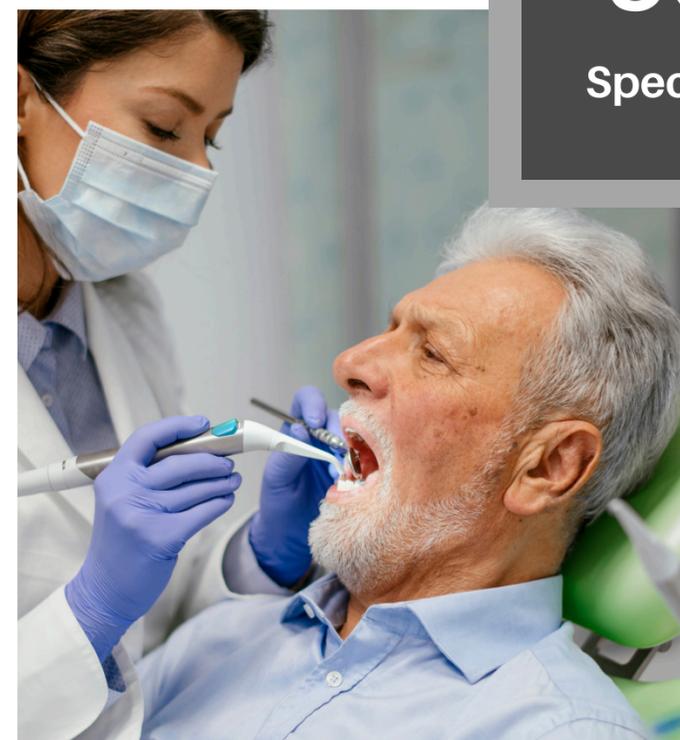

Staffing shortages are a top challenge in rural communities - but Tribal Health's experienced and diverse provider network can cover every clinical specialty.

In addition to emergency medicine, women's health, cardiology, dentistry, psychiatry, kidney health, primary care, ophthalmology, and other disciplines, we also staff administrative professionals and clinical leaders.

Our turnkey clinical network ensures patients receive the right care at the right time - no matter where they're located.

Training & Workforce development

Teaching hospitals and clinics are usually far from rural health facilities – requiring staff to leave their team short-handed, arrange childcare, and travel for a day or longer if they want to update their clinical skills.

Our workforce development team brings the training to you. Our instructors have taught at top medical schools and the U.S. Peace Corps. Through onsite training, your clinical staff receive elbow-to-elbow instruction, drills, reference guides, and virtual simulations.

The result: they gain the new competencies needed to improve patient outcomes - all without missing a shift.

Telehealth & Technology

When rural patients can't find specialty care in their community, telehealth can connect them to the right provider at the right time.

From telepsychiatry to 24/7 ED consults to on-call coverage, our platform ensures that the right care is never out of reach through:

- Correctional inmate care
- 24/7 ED consults
- On-call coverage
- Telepsychiatry

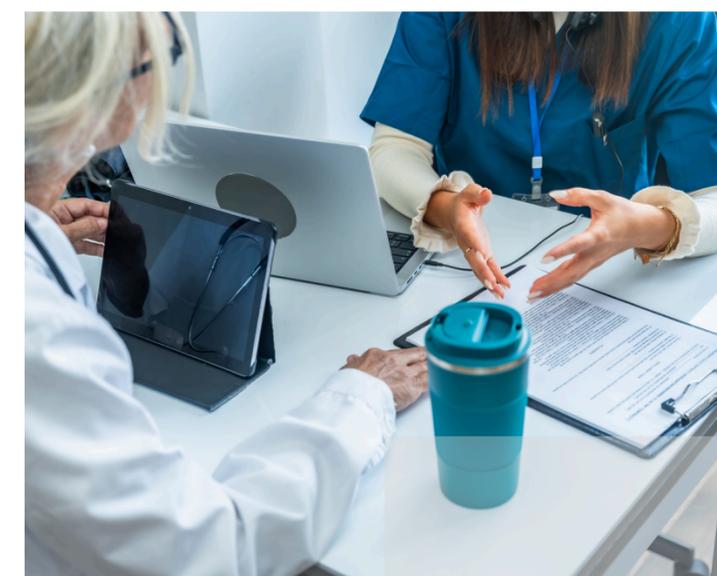

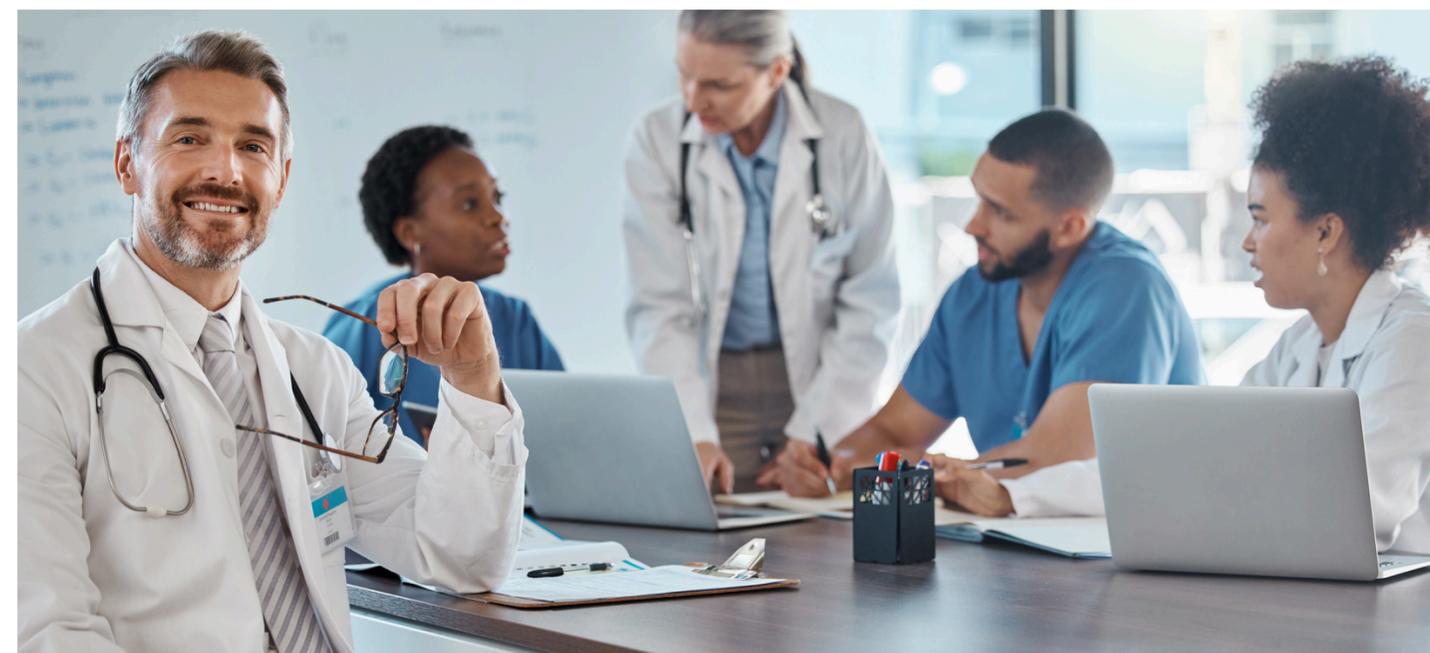

Consulting & Quality improvements

Our consulting team understands the nuances of rural hospital operations, patient workflows, and healthcare administration.

- Our performance improvement plans improve lengthy wait times, low morale, turnover, poor service quality, and other areas that impact patient care.
- We implement policy, process, and procedure changes that support quality initiatives.
- Our consultants assist with JCHO accreditation and CMS certification.

These efforts are critical in keeping facilities open in isolated areas where patients may not survive transport to far-away hospitals.

Community Partnerships

Rural health is community health. We partner with regional organizations to build healthcare literacy, strengthen prevention and early detection, and support public health initiatives. Some of our programs have included:

- Creating mobile ED units and vaccine street teams
- Building a secondary emergency departments for infectious COVID patients
- Holding educational health fairs on chronic disease management
- Providing syphilis education and testing
- Offering complimentary STEM education to high school students
- Partnering with high schools, colleges, and universities to provide healthcare career guidance and mentorship programs
- Collaborating with university research teams on Indigenous health disparities

Our partnerships create a profound and lasting impact in rural health.
